

Coding with Flags

Semaphore is a system of sending messages by holding the arms or two flags or poles in certain positions according to an alphabetic code. It is really useful when you want to send a message to someone who is too far away to hear you.

Each letter of the alphabet has a particular code, as shown above. Can you work out the messages that I've been sent?

